15 NORTHERN DISTRICT OF CALIFORNIA

16
17 TESLA, INC.,

18 Plaintiff,

19 vs.

20 ALAMEDA COUNTY, CALIFORNIA;

21 Defendant.
22

Case Number: 4:20-cv-03186

COMPLAINT FOR INJUNCTIVE AND DECLARATORY RELIEF

NATURE OF THE ACTION

1
2 1. As COVID-19 loomed, local officials scrambled to implement myriad measures
3 protecting the Californians in their jurisdictions. The State stepped in to ensure California’s 4 response was clear, uniform, and coordinated using state-wide regulations. On some issues, that 5 meant establishing baseline policies, and on others, it meant choosing the policy across the state.

6 2. The Governor’s March 20, 2020 stay-at-home order sought to balance the need to 7 protect Californians from infection against the need to maintain Californians’ access to vital 8 supplies and services. In so doing, the Governor chose the policy on one issue: businesses 9 classified by the federal government as “critical infrastructure” are essential to Californians and 10 are allowed to continue operating as part of California’s coordinated response to COVID-19.

11 3. The Order was clear on this point: “I order that Californians working in these 16 12 critical infrastructure sectors may continue their work because of the importance of these sectors 13 to Californians’ health and well-being.” This purpose was to “establish consistency” and that 14 “the supply chain must continue, and Californians must have access to such necessities as food, 15 prescriptions, and health care.” This was not a state-level baseline inviting county innovation 16 above and beyond a minimum; this is an order that certain essential businesses shall be permitted 17 to remain open statewide to provide essential goods and services to all Californians.

18 4. Nevertheless, Alameda County decided that—notwithstanding the clear language 19 and statewide logic of the Governor’s order on this point—it would insist that its prior (and 20 subsequent) conflicting pronouncements controlled over the state-wide order. Alameda County 21 thus arrogated to itself the power to force closure of businesses that the state government had 22 ordered could remain open because they are federally-defined “critical infrastructure” serving 23 vital security, safety, or economic needs of Californians.

1 5. Inexplicably, Alameda County proceeded to direct its shutdown at Tesla, even as 2 Alameda County has simultaneously maintained and publicized a FAQ that expressly describes 3 essential businesses in terms that encompass Tesla’s Fremont Facility:<sup>1</sup>

4 My business installs distributed solar, storage, and/or electric vehicle charging
5 systems – can it continue to operate?

6 Yes, this is permissible construction activity and must comply with the Construction 7 Project Safety Protocols in Appendix B of the Order. Businesses may also operate to 8 manufacture distributed energy resource components, like solar panels.

9 6. What is more, the County has asserted that violations of its orders carry criminal 10 penalties, even though it lacks statutory or other legal authority to do so. Thus, Alameda County 11 has not only created a legal quagmire by wrongly declaring that its own orders trump the state-12 level orders, it has threatened jail time and significant fines for businesses and individuals that do 13 not comply, even where they are clearly authorized by the State Order to continue critical 14 infrastructure activities.

15 7. To be clear, Alameda County is not using the “existing authority of local health 16 officers” to supplement a baseline set by the State, issuing policies “more restrictive than” or “in 17 addition to” that baseline, as referenced in a May 4, 2020 Order. The County is making rules 18 that directly contradict and undermine the policy announced by the Governor in his Orders.

19 8. Alameda County’s power-grab not only defies the Governor’s Order, but offends 20 the federal and California constitutions. First, the County’s order violates the Due Process 21 Clause of the Fourteenth Amendment because it fails to give reasonable notice to persons of 22 ordinary intelligence of what is forbidden under the law. By prohibiting what the Governor’s 23 Order expressly permits, the County’s Order puts businesses deemed critical to the nation’s 24 wellbeing by the federal and state governments between a rock and a hard place—unable to 25 discern what the applicable law permits, under threat of criminal prosecution. This is precisely 26 the dilemma the Due Process Clause’s requirement of fair notice seeks to avoid, particularly

27

1 where, as here, there is no procedure for Plaintiff even to challenge the County’s determination 2 that it is not an essential business that may continue operations under the County’s Order.

3 9. Second, the County’s Order discriminates against identically situated parties 4 without any rational basis and thereby violates the Fourteenth Amendment’s Equal Protection 5 Clause. Even as at least one neighboring county is allowing car manufacturing to resume, 6 Alameda County continues to insist—in violation of the Governor’s Order and against reason—7 that what is permitted in a neighboring county will endanger the public health if permitted to also 8 occur within Alameda County borders. Furthermore, even as Alameda County itself declares 9 businesses like Tesla essential, it somehow simultaneously insists, without rational explanation, 10 that Tesla is to remain shut down

11 10. Third, a county may only “make and enforce within its limits . . . ordinances and 12 regulations not in conflict with general laws.” Calif. Const., art. XI, § 7. By purporting to 13 override an express order of the Governor of California, Alameda County has far exceeded its 14 ambit under the California Constitution. In sum, the County’s Orders threaten not only to close 15 businesses supplying critical infrastructure, thereby violating multiple federal and state 16 constitutional principles, but also to jail people pursuant to criminal statutes that simply do not 17 apply here. To that extent, the County’s Orders should be declared void and without legal effect.

18 THE PARTIES

19 11. Plaintiff Tesla, Inc., is a corporation organized under the laws of Delaware, with 20 its principal place of business in California.

21 12. Defendant Alameda County, California, is a local government entity organized 22 under the Constitution and laws of the State of California.

23 JURISDICTION AND VENUE

24 13. The Court has subject matter jurisdiction over the claims asserted in this action 25 pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 1331 (federal question) because this action involves interpretation of the 26 Due Process and Equal Protection Clauses of the Fourteenth Amendment to the U.S.

1 Constitution (U.S. Const. amend. XIV) and because the action seeks to prevent Defendants from 2 interfering with federal rights.

3 14. Jurisdiction is also appropriate in this Court pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 1343(a)(3)– 4 (4) to redress the deprivation, under color of any State law, statute, ordinance, regulation, custom 5 or usage, of any right, privilege, or immunity secured by the Constitution, and to secure equitable 6 or other relief under any Act of Congress providing for the protection of civil rights.

7 15. This Court has supplemental jurisdiction over Plaintiff’s state law claim pursuant 8 to 28 U.S.C. § 1367(a) because Plaintiff’s state claim is so related to its federal claims that they 9 form part of the same case or controversy under Article III of the United States Constitution.

10 16. Venue is properly vested in this Court pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 1391 because all 11 defendants reside in this district and most of the conduct that underlies this action occurred in the 12 Northern District of California.

13 17. There is a present and actual controversy between the parties.

14 18. The relief requested is authorized pursuant to 28 U.S.C. §§ 2201 and 2202 15 (declaratory judgment), 28 U.S.C. § 1651(a) (injunctive relief), and 42 U.S.C. § 1988 (right to 16 costs, including attorneys’ fees).

17 SUBSTANTIVE ALLEGATIONS

18 I. THE GOVERNOR’S STAY-AT-HOME ORDER

19 19. On March 4, 2020, California Governor Gavin Newsom declared a state of 20 emergency to exist in California in light of the COVID-19 pandemic.

21 20. Subsequently, on March 19, 2020, Governor Newsom signed Executive Order 22 N-33-20 (the “Governor’s Order”). The Governor’s Order directs all residents “to immediately 23 heed the current State public health directives,” including an order of the state public health 24 officer reprinted in the Governor’s Order.

25 21. The Governor’s Order “order[ed] all individuals living in the State of California 26 to stay home or at their place of residence except as needed to maintain continuity of operations 27 of the federal critical infrastructure sector as outlined at <https://www.cisa.gov/identifying-> 28

1 critical-infrastructure-during-covid-19.” The Governor’s Order further explained that “[t]he 2 federal government has identified 16 critical infrastructure sectors whose assets, systems, and 3 networks, whether physical or virtual, are considered so vital to the United States that their 4 incapacitation or destruction would have a debilitating effect on security, economic security, 5 public health or safety, or any combination thereof.” Governor Newsom therefore “order[ed]
6 that Californians working in these 16 critical infrastructure sectors may continue their work 7 because of the importance of these sectors to Californians’ health and well-being.”

8       22. As noted above, the Governor’s Order linked to a federal website identifying the 9 “16 critical infrastructure sectors.”<sup>2</sup> Three of those sixteen sectors are relevant to this litigation:
10 (i) “Transportation Equipment Manufacturing,” which includes “Vehicles and Commercial Ships 11 Manufacturing”; (ii) “Electrical Equipment, Appliance, and Component Manufacturing,” which 12 includes “Electric Motor Manufacturing”; and (iii) the “Energy Sector.” Governor Newsom also 13 reserved the authority to “designate additional sectors as critical in order to protect the health and 14 well-being of all Californians.”

15       23. The Governor’s Order explained that it sought “to establish consistency across the 16 state in order to ensure that we mitigate the impact of COVID-19.”

17       24. The State of California created a “Frequently asked questions” regarding the 18 Governor’s Order. One question asks, “How does this order interact with local orders to shelter 19 in place? Does it supersede them?,” to which the State responded, “This is a statewide order.” 20 Another asks whether an individual who “run[s]/work[s] at an exempted business” must “get an 21 official letter of authorization from the state to operate,” to which the State responded, “No.”

27 Agency, <https://www.cisa.gov/identifying-critical-infrastructure-during-covid-19> (last revised

1 The State went on to clarify that a “business or organization . . . in the list of exempt sectors . . .
2 may still operate” without “any specific authorization from the state to do so.”<sup>3</sup>

3 II. THE ALAMEDA COUNTY ORDERS

4 25. Shortly before Governor Newsom issued his state-wide order, on March 16, 2020, 5 the Interim Health Officer of Alameda County, Dr. Pan, issued a shelter-in-place order (“First 6 County Order”). In bold text, beneath the date, the First County Order warned that “[v]iolation 7 of or failure to comply with this Order is a misdemeanor punishable by fine, imprisonment, or 8 both.” Under the First County Order, “[a]ll businesses with a facility in the County, except 9 Essential Businesses . . . are required to cease all activities at facilities located within the County 10 except Minimum Basic Operations.” By contrast, “Essential Businesses [we]re strongly 11 encouraged to remain open.” The First County Order listed 21 different “Essential Businesses,” 12 including “Essential Infrastructure,” but did not reference or incorporate the list of “16 critical 13 infrastructure sectors” that the Governor’s Order would incorporate three days later. Finally, the 14 First County Order “request[ed] that the Sheriff and all chiefs of police in the County ensure 15 compliance with and enforce this Order.”

16 26. After the Governor’s Order was issued, Dr. Pan issued a second shelter-in-place 17 order superseding the First County Order (“Second County Order”). Like the First County 18 Order, the Second County Order conspicuously warned that “[v]iolation of or failure to comply 19 with this Order is a misdemeanor punishable by fine, imprisonment, or both,” and listed the 20 criminal statutes that, as discussed herein, simply do not apply. Although largely similar to the 21 list of “Essential Business” in the First County Order, the Second County Order added six 22 categories of “Essential Businesses.” Specifically, it added certain types of construction, 23 “[b]icycle repair and supply shops,” various real estate professionals, and various types of 24 landscaping professionals, among others. Again, the Second County Order did not reference or 27 Response, <https://covid19.ca.gov/stay-home-except-for-essential-needs/> (last visited May 6, 28 2020).

1 incorporate the list of “16 critical infrastructure sectors,” which the Governor’s Order by then 2 had ordered may remain open.

3         27. The Second County Order referenced the Governor’s Order, characterizing it as 4 “set[ting] baseline statewide restrictions on non-residential business activities.” The Second 5 County Order purported to “adopt[] in certain respects more stringent restrictions addressing the 6 particular facts and circumstances in this County.” According to the Second County Order, 7 “Where a conflict exists between this Order and any state public health order related to the 8 COVID-19 pandemic, the most restrictive provision controls.” In support of that assertion, the 9 Second County Order cited only one statute: “California Health and Safety Code section 10 131080.” California Health and Safety Code § 131080, however, does not allow a County 11 Health Officer to override a statewide order. Instead, it simply provides: “The [California 12 D]epartment [of Public Health] may advise all local health authorities, and, when in its judgment 13 the public health is menaced, it shall control and regulate their action.”

14         28. Finally, on April 29, 2020, Dr. Pan issued a third shelter-in-place order (“Third 15 County Order”). “[I]n light of the progress achieved in slowing the spread of COVID-19 in the 16 County of Alameda,” the Third County Order “allow[ed] a limited number of additional 17 Essential Business to resume operating.” The Third County Order largely reiterated the 18 assertions in the Second County Order regarding Alameda County’s authority to adopt “more 19 stringent restrictions,” but it added for the first time: “[T]o the extent any federal guidelines 20 allow activities that are not allowed by this Order, this Order controls and those activities are not 21 allowed.” Again, the Third County Order did not reference or incorporate the list of “16 critical 22 infrastructure sectors” that the Governor’s Order had already ordered may remain open.

23         29. Although the County interprets its Third Order to mean otherwise, the County’s 24 COVID-19 “Frequently Asked Questions” ostensibly authorizes both battery and electric vehicle 25 manufacturing companies to operate. The relevant text provides:

26                 My business installs distributed solar, storage, and/or electric vehicle charging
27                 systems – can it continue to operate?

1 Yes, this is permissible construction activity and must comply with the Construction
2 Project Safety Protocols in Appendix B of the Order. Businesses may also operate to 3 manufacture distributed energy resource components, like solar panels.<sup>4</sup>

4 30. Critically, this allowance for the “manufacture [of] distributed energy resource 5 components” encompasses substantially all of Tesla’s manufacturing activities in Fremont. As 6 defined by the Public Utility Commission (the state agency solely charged with regulating 7 distributed energy), “distributed energy resource technology” includes both electric vehicles and 8 batteries: “For purposes of this section, ‘distributed resources’ means distributed renewable 9 generation resources, energy efficiency, energy storage, electric vehicles, and demand response 10 technologies.” PUC § 769(a); see also, e.g., *In the Matter of the Application of Pac. Gas & Elec.
11 Co. for Approval of Its Elec. Vehicle Infrastructure & Educ. Program* (U39e), No. 15-02-009, 12 2017 WL 1743098 (Apr. 27, 2017) (explaining that the definition of “‘distributed resources’ 13 includes EVs).

14 31. Through its own guidance, Alameda County has expressly recognized and 15 publicized that “businesses may . . . operate to manufacture” batteries and electric vehicles.
16 Inexplicably, however, the Third Order as well as County officials have simultaneously insisted 17 that Tesla must remain shuttered, thereby further compounding the ambiguity, confusion and 18 irrationality surrounding Alameda County’s position as to whether Tesla may resume 19 manufacturing activities at its Fremont Factory and elsewhere in the County.

20 32. Further, while the County has issued all three of its Orders under threat of 21 criminal punishment, citing Health and Safety Code Section 120295 and Penal Code Sections 22 148(a)(1) and 69, none of those statutes have any relevance here. Section 120295 makes it a 23 crime to violate “Section 120130 or any section in Chapter 3.” Of the cited provisions, however, 24 only a handful impose obligations on individual citizens, as opposed to health officials, and only 25 where a health officer orders either “quarantine” or “isolation,” neither of which is applicable 26 here. The former applies only to persons known to have been “exposed to a communicable

1 disease” and the latter only to “infected persons.” To the contrary, Plaintiff’s workers would be 2 those without known exposure or infection. Penal Code Section 148 only applies to a person 3 willfully resisting, delaying, or obstructing a public official. If Penal Code Section 148 were to 4 make merely going to work a crime, that would re-write those Health and Safety Code sections 5 that carefully made some violations criminally enforceable and others not. Further, such an 6 interpretation would expand criminality to a myriad of other rules and regulations where the 7 legislature chose to impose civil penalties only: noncompliance with any civil law that a public 8 official is charged with enforcing would now become criminal in nature. The only other criminal 9 statute cited by the County is Penal Code Section 69, but that applies only to deterring or 10 resisting a public official from performing his or her duties by means of threats, force, or 11 violence.

12 III. THE GOVERNOR’S REOPENING ORDER

13 33. On May 4, 2020, Governor Newsom issued Executive Order N-60-20 concerning 14 the second and third stages of California’s “four-stage framework . . . to allow Californians to 15 gradually resume various activities” (“The Governor’s Reopening Order”). The Governor’s 16 Reopening Order directed the State Public Health Officer to “establish criteria and procedures 17 . . . to determine whether and how particular local jurisdictions may implement public health 18 measures that depart from the statewide directives,” specifically “measures less restrictive than 19 any public health measures implemented on a statewide basis.”

20 34. The Governor’s Reopening Order also states that it should not be “construed to 21 limit the existing authority of local health officers” to adopt “more restrictive” or “addition[al]” 22 measures” (emphasis added). Under existing law, “[a] county or city may make and enforce 23 within its limits all local, police, sanitary, and other ordinances and regulations not in conflict 24 with general laws.” Cal. Const. art. XI, § 7 (emphasis added). And when, as here, the Governor 25 exercises the State’s “police power” during a state of emergency, the Governor’s “orders and 26 regulations shall have the force and effect of law.” Cal. Gov’t Code §§ 8567, 8627.
27 Accordingly, the Governor’s Reopening Order only allows counties to act within their “existing 28

1 authority”—that is, to adopt measures that are consistent with the Governor’s orders or that 2 address matters on which the Governor’s orders are silent. But it does not, and cannot be read to, 3 allow a county to override an express permission in the Governor’s Order to continue to the 4 operations of federal critical infrastructure businesses.

5 IV. TESLA’S FREMONT FACILITY

6 35. Plaintiff operates a factory in Fremont, California (the “Tesla Factory”), which is 7 in Alameda County.

8 36. After the First County Order was issued, Plaintiff continued to operate the Tesla 9 Factory in the good-faith belief that it was exempt from the shelter-in-place order since its 10 operations clearly fell within multiple federally declared critical infrastructure sectors. At the 11 same time, Plaintiff encouraged any employees who felt sick or uncomfortable coming to work 12 to stay at home.

13 37. Subsequently, on March 17, 2020, Defendant Sheriff Ahern announced on Twitter 14 that Plaintiff was “not an essential business as defined in the Alameda County Health Order” and 15 could therefore only “maintain minimum basic operations.”<sup>5</sup>

16 38. Plaintiff nevertheless continued to operate its plant in accordance with the federal 17 and state governments’ guidance. The Tesla Factory and other facilities in Alameda County 18 manufacture electric cars, electric motors, and energy storage products. Tesla’s Alameda County 19 operations thus encompass three of the federal critical infrastructure sectors: (i) “Transportation 20 Equipment Manufacturing,” which includes “Vehicles and Commercial Ships Manufacturing”; 21 (ii) “Electrical Equipment, Appliance, and Component Manufacturing,” which includes “Electric 22 Motor Manufacturing”; and (iii) the “Energy Sector.” Plaintiff therefore continued to operate the 23 Tesla Factory to maintain the supply of critical federal infrastructure.

24 39. Following that announcement, Plaintiff negotiated with Defendants in a good-25 faith effort to reach a mutually agreeable resolution. Although Plaintiff believed it had the right 26

28 <https://twitter.com/acsosheriffs/status/1240062681635123201?s=21>.

1 to continue operating, on March 19, 2020, Plaintiff decided to stop operations at the Tesla 2 Factory at the end of the day on March 23, 2020.

3 40. Although the Governor’s Order expressly permits the operation of the Tesla 4 Factory, Plaintiff has attempted in good faith to negotiate a settlement with Alameda County to 5 allow its plant to reopen and begin producing critical federal infrastructure. Nevertheless, 6 Defendants continue to take the position that the Tesla Factory is not an “Essential Business” 7 under the Third County Order and therefore may not reopen, regardless of the express 8 permission to do so in the Governor’s Order.

9 CLAIMS FOR RELIEF

10 COUNT I:

11 DEPRIVATION OF LIBERTY AND PROPERTY IN VIOLATION
12 OF THE FOURTEENTH AMENDMENT DUE PROCESS CLAUSE

13 41. Plaintiffs incorporate by reference and re-allege each and every allegation set 14 forth in all preceding paragraphs as if fully set forth herein.

15 42. The Due Process Clause of the Fourteenth Amendment provides that “[n]o State 16 shall . . . deprive any person of life, liberty, or property, without due process of law.” A State 17 “violates this guarantee by taking away someone’s life, liberty, or property under a criminal law 18 so vague that it fails to give ordinary people fair notice of the conduct it punishes, or so 19 standardless that it invites arbitrary enforcement.” Johnson v. United States, 135 S. Ct. 2551, 20 2556 (2015).

21 43. Because the Third County Order directly contradicts the Governor’s Order, it fails 22 to provide sufficient notice of which actions will potentially subject Plaintiff to the criminal 23 penalties it incorrectly seeks to apply. Specifically, although the Governor’s Order allows all 24 businesses operating in federal critical infrastructure to continue operating, the Third County 25 Order purports to restrict the operation of many of these businesses. It would therefore be 26 unclear, at best, to any person of ordinary intelligence what the Governor’s Order and the Third 27 County Order collectively prohibit and allow.

1           44. In addition, the Third County Order would purport to impose criminal liability on 2 Plaintiff and its employees should they simply follow the Governor’s directive that they “may 3 continue their work because of [its] . . . importance to Californians’ health and well-being.” Yet, 4 as alleged above, none of the statutory provisions cited in the County Order actually authorizes 5 the imposition of criminal sanctions in these circumstances, leaving critical infrastructure 6 businesses and their employees uncertain as to whether they may nonetheless be wrongfully 7 prosecuted or, indeed, exactly what conduct is proscribed.

8           45. Because the Third County Order also contradicts Alameda County’ own 9 substantive guidance, in its FAQ, indicating that businesses like Tesla’s in fact qualify as 10 essential, no reader of ordinary intelligence could reasonably ascertain that continuation of such 11 business might constitute a criminal offense.

12           46. In addition, Alameda County has violated the Due Process Clause insomuch as it 13 fails to provide any meaningful procedure for challenging its determination that a business is 14 non-essential, either pre or post deprivation of Tesla’s constitutional right to use of its property.
 15 Logan v. Zimmerman Brush Co., 455 U.S. 422, 432-33 (1982). Instead, the County simply 16 announced by Tweet that Tesla’s operations were not essential, without any formal process.

17           47. Plaintiff respectfully seeks a declaration that the Third County Order violates the 18 Due Process Clause of the Fourteenth Amendment to the U.S. Constitution.

19   COUNT II:
 20   VIOLATION OF THE EQUAL PROTECTION
 21   CLAUSE OF THE FOURTEENTH AMENDMENT

22           48. Plaintiffs incorporate by reference and re-allege each and every allegation set 23 forth in all preceding paragraphs as if fully set forth herein.

24           49. When those who appear similarly situated are nevertheless treated differently, the 25 Equal Protection Clause requires at least a rational reason for the difference, to ensure that all 26 persons subject to legislation or regulation are indeed being ‘treated alike, under like 27 circumstances and conditions.’” Engquist v. Ore. Dep’t of Agr., 553 U.S. 591, 602 (2008).
 28

1 50. Yet, Tesla is permitted, and continues, to operate its factory and other facilities in 2 neighboring San Joaquin County. There is no rational basis for this disparate treatment of two 3 neighboring Tesla facilities both operating in federal critical infrastructure sectors, and the Order 4 does not attempt to offer one. Indeed, many of Tesla’s employees at its Fremont factory reside
5 in San Joaquin County. Nor does any substantial difference in the COVID-19 infection rate 6 justify this disparity: San Joaquin County has experienced an infection rate of 79.3 cases per 7 100,000 people and a death rate of 3.7 deaths per 100,000 people as of May 7, 2020, which is 8 substantially similar to the infection rate of 114.6 per 100,000 people and death rate of 4.2 per 9 100,000 people as of the same date in neighboring Alameda County.<sup>6</sup> This disparate treatment is 10 arbitrary and without a rational basis.

11 51. What is more, the County has required Tesla to shutter despite announcing its 12 substantive position, spelled out in its own FAQ, that businesses manufacturing the products 13 Tesla manufactures should and may remain open. By shuttering Tesla in contradiction of its own 14 publicly-stated rationale and definition for reopening specified businesses, Alameda County is 15 acting irrationally and trying to shutter Tesla in sui generis fashion irreconcilable with Alameda 16 County’s own avowed policy.

17 52. Plaintiff respectfully seeks a declaration that the Third County Order violates the 18 Equal Protection Clause of the Fourteenth Amendment to the U.S. Constitution.

19 COUNT III:

20 PREEMPTION

21 53. Plaintiffs incorporate by reference and re-allege each and every allegation set 22 forth in all preceding paragraphs as if fully set forth herein.

23 54. Under article XI, section 7 of the California Constitution, “A county or city may 24 make and enforce within its limits all local, police, sanitary, and other ordinances and regulations 25 not in conflict with general laws.” Under this provision, a “State Law is in conflict with or 26 _____

27 <sup>6</sup> See California Coronavirus Map and Case Count, N.Y. Times, <https://nyti.ms/2X0DtZd> (last 28 updated May 7, 2020).

1 preempts local law if the local law duplicates, contradicts, or enters an area fully occupied by 2 general law, either expressly or by legislative implication.” First Resort, Inc. v. Herrera, 860 3 F.3d 1263, 1280 (9th Cir. 2017) (internal quotations omitted).

4 55. Further, section 131080 of the California Health and Safety Code provides, “The 5 [California D]epartment [of Public Health] may advise all local health authorities, and, when in 6 its judgment the public health is menaced, it shall control and regulate their action.”

7 56. Moreover, California law vests the Governor with substantial additional authority 8 to control the response to state-wide emergencies. Section 8627 of the California Government 9 Code provides, “During a state of emergency the Governor shall, to the extent he deems 10 necessary, have complete authority over all agencies of the state government and the right to 11 exercise within the area designated all police power vested in the state by the Constitution and 12 laws of the State of California in order to effectuate the purposes of this chapter. In exercise 13 thereof, he shall promulgate, issue, and enforce such orders and regulations as he deems 14 necessary, in accordance with the provisions of Section 8567.” Under section 8567(a) of the 15 Government Code, the Governor’s “orders and regulations shall have the force and effect of 16 law.”

17 57. The Governor’s Order incorporates an order of the State Public Health Officer 18 and Director of the California Department of Public Health which expressly “order[s] that 19 Californians working in the[] 16 critical infrastructure sectors may continue their work because 20 of the importance of these sectors to Californians’ health and well-being.”

21 58. The Tesla Factory manufactures electric cars, electric motors, and storage 22 devices. The Tesla Factory therefore operates in three of the federal critical infrastructure 23 sectors: (i) “Transportation Equipment Manufacturing,” which includes “Vehicles and 24 Commercial Ships Manufacturing”; (ii) “Electrical Equipment, Appliance, and Component 25 Manufacturing,” which includes “Electric Motor Manufacturing”; and (iii) the “Energy Sector.”
26 Under the Governor’s Order, Plaintiff is expressly allowed to continue operations at the Tesla 27 Factory.

1 59. The Third County Order nevertheless contradicts the Governor’s Order and 2 purports to restrict the conduct of businesses operating in the federal critical infrastructure 3 sectors. In addition, because Plaintiff does not qualify as an “Essential Business” under the 4 Third County Order, the Third County Order purports to prohibit Plaintiff from operating its 5 Fremont Factory. The Third County Order therefore directly contradicts the Governor’s Order to 6 the extent it restricts the operation of business operating in the federal critical infrastructure 7 sectors.

8 60. Plaintiff respectfully seeks a declaration that to the extent the Third County Order 9 contradicts the Governor’s Order by purporting to foreclose Tesla from operating as federal 10 critical infrastructure, it violates article XI, section 7 of the California Constitution, and section 11 131080 of the California Health and Safety Code, and thus is void and unenforceable.

12 PRAYER FOR RELIEF

13 In light of the foregoing, Plaintiff respectfully prays that this Court:

14 A. Issue a permanent injunction enjoining enforcement of the Third County Order 15 against Plaintiff;

16 B. Issue a declaratory judgment, pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 2201 and Rule 57 of the 17 Federal Rules of Civil Procedure, that the Third County Order violates the Due Process Clause as 18 applied to Plaintiff because it fails to provide fair notice of what the law requires;

19 C. Issue a declaratory judgment, pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 2201, California 20 Constitution, art. XI, § 7, and California Health and Safety Code § 131080, that the Third County 21 Order is void to the extent it is inconsistent with the provisions of the Governor’s Order 22 expressly allowing the continued operation of the federal critical infrastructure sectors;

23 D. Award reasonable attorneys’ fees and costs pursuant to 42 U.S.C. § 1988; and 24 E. Award such other relief available under the law that may be considered 25 appropriate under the circumstances, including other fees and costs of this action to the extent 26 allowed by the law.
